ABOUT THE BOOK

Petal is everything you could want in a cow. She is kind, thoughtful, a great baker and a wonderful artist. She also has a temper. A very big, out-of-control temper. And it doesn't help that her barnyard pals like to push her buttons. On the day the farmer announces a fabulous trip to a water park, the horse steps on Petal's foot, and she has her biggest tantrum yet. The farmer tells Petal that if she doesn't get her temper under control, she won't be able to go to the water park! What else can she do but stomp away in a huff? Then Petal meets a swan who shows her a thing or two about behaving. And not in the way you'd expect . . .

This laugh-out-loud story will tickle even the surliest reader, and Petal's outsized tantrums will feel very familiar to parents and kids alike. But like Petal, this story also has a heart of gold and a core of pure warmth.

KEEP THE CONVERSATION GOING

Here are some ideas, activities and questions to consider after you've read the book:

- What would you do if an angry swan ruined your game of Go Fish? How about an angry friend?
- Have you ever had trouble controlling your temper? What did you do about it?
- The farmer tells Petal, "Many things worth doing aren't easy." Can you think of something you've had to do that was difficult but worthwhile?
